

Embodied Learning

for Early Years and Primary STEM

Embodied Learning is a research-informed initiative to help educators and children develop and communicate their understanding of STEM concepts, connecting rich hands-on experiences with language through gesture.

For more information:

Euan Mitchell:

Euan.Mitchell@sserc.scot

Prof Andrew Manches:

a.manches@ed.ac.uk

RESOURCES FOR PRACTITIONERS:

Training programme

Online accredited self-study course or tailored face-to-face sessions delivered by SSERC.

STEM Charades communication game

Free PDFs or physical cards to play and reflect on how and why we communicate STEM ideas through gestures.

THE UNIVERSITY of EDINBURGH

Economic and Social Research Council

